Ketsia Delarosa-Torres is the Regional Training Coordinator for the Garrett Lee Smith Suicide Prevention Grant at The New York Foundling. She has an A.A. in Human Services from Bronx Community College and a B.A. and MSW in Social Work from CUNY, Herbert H. Lehman College. She has been working in child welfare for several years and began her career as a Socio-Therapist in the Therapeutic Foster Care Unit at Graham Windham. She later moved to providing independent living skills training to adolescents aging out of foster care. Mrs. Delarosa-Torres has also provided education advocacy and training to therapeutic youth in foster care. She has provided counseling for adolescent girls in foster care and co-facilitated a parenting group for adolescent pregnant and parenting teens in foster care. In addition to coordinating suicide prevention trainings she is also providing training and is an ASIST, Safetalk, Suicide TALK and QPR trainer.
